

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

ALL THE NEWS THAT'S FIT TO PRINT.

VOL. XXXVI

CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1911.

8 Pages

No. 2

CROSSES THE RIVER OF LIFE

Capt. Marion Ryan Victim Of Heart Disease--Died In Louisville Wednesday Night--Was Fifty Seven Years Of Age, And A Riverman Twenty-Five years

FUNERAL HELD FRIDAY

Capt. F. Marion Ryan died in Louisville last Wednesday night at 9:45 o'clock after an illness of six months. He was brought here recently from Hickman, Ky., and three weeks ago was taken to Louisville for special treatment.

Although Capt. Ryan was born in Tobinsport, Ind., fifty-seven years ago, Cloverport claimed him. He was the son of Thomas Ryan, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Catherine Ryan, survives him at the age of eighty-six years. "Goodby, mother dear," were the last words he said to her when he was taken away on a cot for Louisville. These were always his farewell words on the river bank when his steam boat pulled out from Cloverport during the last twenty years. Up until five years ago Capt. Ryan was connected with the Louisville and Evansville Transportation Company, and was Captain of the "Morning Star" and other steamers. Friends he had among the river men, in the cities, and at every light house from the head waters of the Ohio to the gulf.

He leaves a wife and one sister, Mrs. L. B. Perkins. Mrs. Ryan was Miss Mary L. Cowden, whom he married the seventeenth of September, 1877.

The funeral was held in the Baptist church Friday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated. The services were conducted at the grave in the Cloverport cemetery by the Masonic body of this city. The casket was draped in a blanket of flowers and beautiful floral tributes covered the grave. The pall bearers were: Messrs. William Gibson, Chas. May, Wick Moorman, Charles Sawyer, Julius Nolte, and Frank Payne. Those who attended the funeral from a distance were: Harry Weatherholt, of Central City; Mrs. Wyatt Bush and Miss May Zirkle, of Louisville; Mrs. Hattie Wyatt, of Elizabethtown; Rowland Smith, of Stephensport; Mrs. Thos. Linsey, of Evansville; Alfred Lee, of Howell, Ind.; and Mrs. Holt, of Irvington.

Visited In The City Sunday

The following Grand Officers of the K. of P. lodge of Kentucky, were in the city Sunday on their way to Owensboro from Lexington, by way of Louisville and Cloverport in an automobile. Mr. E. W. G. Hobbs, Sr., President of the Board of Control of the Widows and Orphans Home. Mr. J. W. Carter, G. K. R. & S.; Mr. J. B. Hunt; Mr. E. W. G. Hobbs, Jr., was chauffeur. The party reached Cloverport about 2 o'clock p. m., and stopped at the home of Mr. Chas. May, Sr. They were royally entertained until four o'clock when they departed for Owensboro.

Capt. Rowland III.

Capt. J. H. Rowland was taken suddenly ill Saturday afternoon at the Henderson Route shops. He is at home and is somewhat improved. His health has not been the best all summer, and the Captain's friends regret that he cannot enjoy the hot weather as much as usual.

From Old Friends

The News received a pamphlet on the Indiana, Kentucky, and Illinois fair circuit 1911 from W. T. Builock, who was U. S. mail agent on the Tarascon, 1893 to 1873 and Zack Barker, who was Adams express agent.

Arrested at Hawesville.

Hawesville, Ky., July 15.—City Marshal Mason made an exceptionally good catch Friday when he arrested James Cooper, of Shawneetown, Ill., and George Burdette, of Rockport, Ind., two young white men, charged with grand larceny, for the alleged theft of ten large fish nets and a skiff at Stephensport several days ago. Officer Mason caught the two young men with the nets and the skiff in their possession and while above this place, and, finding them here, placed them in jail to await the arrival of an officer from Stephensport.

Mr. Newman No Better.

A. P. Newman, who was critically ill in the spring, shows no improvement said his daughter, Miss Margaret Newman, who was in town Monday. W. H. Newman, who is in Europe, will return to New York in September when he expects to come back here to see his brother, whom he had not seen until this spring for forty-four years.

Homes Are Gladdened.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lawson are rejoiced over the fine son, who arrived at their home July 13. He has been named James Edward.

o o o

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Randall are receiving congratulations on their new girl baby.

o o o

Master David Marlon Behen has a little brother, Ira Behen, Jr. He arrived at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Behen, July 13.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to extend our thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness shown us during the illness and death of our beloved mother and wife.

Mr. J. W. Lyons and Children.

SATURDAY'S GAME

Frymire's Team And The Cloverporters Have A Pretty Diamond Picture Here--Good Crowd

Enthusiasm over base-ball in Cloverport is growing every day and an exciting game was played Saturday. The score was 14 to 4 in favor of the home team. The boys played excellent ball and the battery was in fine trim. The game was as follows:

CLOVERPORT

	p.	a.	b.	r.	e.
J. O'Brien s. s.	1	3	2	2	0
S. Jarboe 1b.	12	0	1	2	2
L. Furrow 3b.	2	0	1	1	0
R. Wilson c.	4	2	2	1	1
E. Gibson 2b.	3	3	2	1	2
M. Tucker r. f.	1	0	1	3	0
C. Hall p.	0	1	3	3	0
B. Tucker c. f.	2	2	0	0	0
L. Pate l. f.	2	0	1	1	0
Total	27	11	13	14	5

Two base hit, Gibson; Double play, B. Tucker to Jarboe; base on balls, Hall 4; Struck out, Hall 4; hit by pitched ball, Hall 1.

FRYMIRE

	p.	a.	b.	r.	e.
Barr c.	2	2	0	0	0
Shellman s. s.	8	2	0	2	2
Bruner 2b.	5	1	1	1	0
Grant r. f.	0	0	1	1	1
Hall 1b.	5	2	0	0	2
O'Bryan p.	1	5	0	0	3
Tavesay l. f.	0	0	0	0	0
Brashear 3b.	2	0	0	0	4
Bassett c. f.	1	0	0	0	0
Total	24	12	2	4	12

Home run, Grant; base on balls, O'Bryan 4; Grant 2; struck out, O'Bryan 4; Grant 3; hit by pitched ball, O'Bryan 2; Grant 2; passed balls, Shellman 2, Barr 2.

Umpire, Lee Yeager; score keeper, David Phelps.

Gardner--Perkins.

Miss Mamie Gardner and Mr. Orville Perkins were married Saturday evening. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Drurer, of Duquoin, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins spent Sunday here with relatives and friends. They will make their home in Lexington where he has a position as pharmacist. Mrs. Perkins is a lovely young woman, and has made her home for several years with Mrs. Fallon. Mr. Perkins is an excellent and ambitious young man.

NOTICE

We challenge any kid ball team for a series of three or five games. Our players are all under 15 years of age and this is the only restriction we place on opposing teams. We will treat all visitors nice, and will play any team within the age limit. Correspond with the undersigned.

Marlon Weatherholt, Mgr. "Kid Ball Team," Cloverport, Ky.

REWARD MAY BE DOUBLED

For Apprehension of Noel Bowrman Accused Of Murder Of Bert McCarty, Of Lewisport.

HAD MADE THREATS.

Although there are a number of warrants out for the arrest of Noel Bowrman, charging him with the murder of Bert McCarty, the Lewisport ticket agent, the officers have been unable to get any trace of the supposed murderer.

It is claimed that the citizens of Lewisport have made up a purse of $250 for the arrest of Bowrman, and that the governor will likely offer a similar reward, and with an additional reward of $250 offered by the L. H. & St. L. will put the officers to work in earnest, and within a few days Bowrman will doubtless be in custody.

The latest warrant for Bowrman was sworn out by George Rarick, a section man, of Maceo, who found McCarty's body, and who claims to have seen Bowrman skulking away.

The accused Noel Bowrman was formerly a section hand at Lewisport. Suspicion fastens this most heinous crime on him because it is claimed he had threatened McCarty's life for reporting him for the alleged stealing of whisky out of the Lewisport depot. Bowrman's discharge following He then went to Maceo, it is said, and secured a similar position, being again discharged. Bowrman formerly worked on the section at Hawesville, and has the reputation of former trouble. He is a half brother of Mrs. Aleck Alsip, living near town, and his mother resides at Deaneville.

Excitement over the crime runs high at Lewisport and all over the county, and if the perpetrator is caught, there is little doubt that no expense to the county will attach to his trial.—Owensboro Inquirer.

ATTRACTIVE GIRL

Marries In Macon, Illinois--Miss Bernice Roff And Mr. Raymond E. Gray Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wave Roff, of this city, have received invitations to the marriage of his sister, Miss Bernice Fay Roff to Mr. Raymond E. Gray.

The wedding took place in Macon, Ill., last evening. The bride is the sister of Mrs. Albert Whitaker, of Macon, who issued the invitations.

Mrs. Gray is an attractive and accomplished young girl. Since she has been grown, she spent one summer with her brother here and visited friends in Indiana.

Sweet Little Girl Dies.

The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gregory died suddenly in Louisville last week. The body was brought here for burial and the funeral was held at the home of Mr. Gregory's parents.

ALL BUT ONE SPEND NIGHT AT HOME.

Mother Sleeps Gently In Last Resting Place--Mrs. Lyons Dies And Leaves A Large Family.

FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY.

Mrs. Lyons, wife of J. W. Lyons, of Tobinsport, died at home last Monday night, after an illness lasting a year. She was seventy-three years of age and her life was one of usefulness and satisfaction to her family and friends.

A Christian was Mrs. Lyons and she was a member of the Baptist church sixty three years. Her father was Judge Tom Tobin, for whom the port was named. He owned five hundred acres in the bottom and was one of the most substantial settlers in Perry county.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Lyons leaves six grown children, all have lived up to her teachings and they were the pride of her life. They are: Mrs. Mollie Leaf, of Derby; Tom J. Lyons, Miss Nell Lyons, Mrs. Carrie Tate, Miss Minnie Lyons, James Lyons, of Coffeyville, Kans. They attended the funeral, which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Gabbert.

Tuesday night after the funeral twenty children and the father were together. They stayed at home, the first time without mother.

Returns to Work.

Miss A. Louise Babbage will be at the News office every Monday and Tuesday and is glad to get back to work again. She hopes her friends will remember that she cannot write what she does not know, and will depend on them to keep her posted on all the news. During her absence, Miss Mildred Babbage took charge of the work and did splendidly.

PERKINS--BELL

Lovely Young Woman Marries In Oklahoma City--Bride And Groom Both Well-Known In Cloverport.

Miss Addie Perkins and Mr. J. O. Bell were married in Oklahoma City, July 5, at the home of his sister, whose critical illness compelled the marriage to take place there.

Mrs. Bell has had charge of the trimming department of Mrs. Cordrey's Millinery establishment in this city for several seasons. She knew Mr. Bell here while he was with The American Tobacco Company. They both have many good friends in Cloverport. Mr. and Mrs. Bell will make their home in Elk City, Okla.

Barbecue Dance.

The young society men of Cloverport are making arrangements for the annual barbecue hop to be given Thursday night, August 10th.

Good News For Teachers.

Kentucky's school per capita this year will be higher than it has ever been in the history of the State although it has not yet been fixed. The present per capita is $4, but in some counties where the dog tax brings in a neat sum the per capita goes higher, as the money is collected. The straight per capita for the school children of the whole State has never been higher than $1, which was the amount for last year. This year, on account of the large increase in the assessment on personal and real property and also because of increased assessment on franchises, there will be more money raised than in some years and the school per capita may go as high as $4.05. The school census has not been completed yet so it is not possible to tell just what the school per capita will be, but Frank P. James, State Auditor said last night he thought it would go as high as $1.10. Mr. James said the per capita certainly would be higher than it had ever been and would be more than the $4 which was fixed last year.—Frankfort News Journal.

Sunday School Picnic.

The members of the Baptist Sunday School gave their annual picnic last Tuesday in Oglesby's Grove. There was a large crowd and they all had a delightful time.

HAS THE RIGHT RING

Ed. Shinnick, Who Fought McCreary, Swings Into Line And Urges Election of Nominee.

Editor Shinnick, of the Shelbyville Record, made a hard fight for his favorite, Mr. Addams, in the State primary, but now proves that he is a true blue Democrat by coming out flat footed and unequivocally for Senator McCreary, the nominee. The following editorial from the Record of last Friday, is chock full of sound advice. Read this:

In the primary election held last Saturday a comparatively small vote was polled, yet Mr. McCreary was chosen by an overwhelming majority as the party's nominee. We were not surprised at the result of the primary, but "to tell the truth and face the devil," we were disappointed. We were anti-McCreary for what we considered good and sufficient reasons, not the least of which was the belief that he would be weaker in November than some other man at the head of the ticket.

We are a Democrat in everything that the term implies. We believe in majority rule and are ready and willing to do all we can in our feeble way, that the ticket may be successful in the general election. As to the candidates nominated for the minor offices on the ticket, there cannot be a word of adverse criticism. They are, individually and collectively, as good as could possibly have been selected. What has been said of any of the candidates before the primary should be forgotten. Every Democrat should remember that the prospects of electing a Democrat President at the next election grow better all the time. They should remember, too, that Kentucky is tired of Republican misrule and for that reason they should work harmoniously to the end that the nominees selected last Saturday may be elected at the November election. Let us pull together and have a Democratic Administration in Kentucky and later on we will give the State's electoral vote for a Democratic President.

Got Homesick.

Prof. Edmund Wroe, of Flemingsburg, arrived last week for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wroe. His sister, Miss Margaret Wroe, went to his home for a visit several weeks ago. She talked so much about home that the "big brother" got homesick. Something rare for a fellow to do these days, but "Ed Wroe" always loved Cloverport which was returned as he was given a position in the Cloverport Graded School every term for eight years.

Date Changed.

The Masonic picnic at West Point will be held Friday, August 4, instead of July 29. A big time is planned.

STATE POLITICS ALL AGLOW.

Ben Johnson to Go On the Stump--Suggestion of Permanent Democratic Headquarters in Louisville.

OTHER DOPE OF INTEREST.

Louisville, Ky., July 15.—It came to light today that several prominent Louisville Democrats, having the good of the party at heart, are at work on a plan to incorporate a company with $20,000 capital, divided into shares of $100 each for the purpose of buying or erecting a suitable building near the center of the city, to be used as permanent Democratic headquarters, to be equipped with billiard and reading rooms and other conveniences. It is the purpose of the promoters to give the headquarters a State color by giving the State Democrats a chance to take shares at nominal sums. However, all Democrats, whether stockholders or not, will be welcome at all times, and requested to make the headquarters theirs while in Louisville.

Ben Johnson to Stump.

Congressman Ben Johnson, of the Fourth district, returned to Washington this week, after spending several days with his family at Bardonia. As Chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia, he is busy probing into the municipal affairs of Washington, a task of no mean proportions. Congressman Johnson is "tooth and toe man" for the Democratic State ticket, headed by Senator McCreary, and will be found on the stump when the campaign starts, his friends say.

Kimball For Chairman.

Many Democrats in looking around for a suitable and capable Chairman of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, have hit upon former Congressman William Preston Kimball. His friends declare that he is in every way equipped for the onerous and responsible work, and is without a peer in executive ability required to conduct a winning State campaign. He is the present chairman of the Lexington and Fayette county Democratic Committee.

MATTINGLY

A daughter was born to the wife of Len Keenan July 14.

V. Hinton, of Louisville, came last Sunday to see his wife, who is sick at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pate.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pate, of Beech Fork, visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Mason last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hambleton visited her sister, Mrs. Peyton Eskridge last Sunday.

Miss Florence Rhodes, of Kirk, commenced her school at Mattingly last Monday.

Jim Philip's horse died last Saturday.

Mrs. Peyton Scott, of Cloverport, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pate, has returned home.

Morris Sanders visited Heber and Charley Hawkins on Beech Fork Sunday.

Miss Irene Brickey visited her cousins, Alice and Flora Brickey Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Perkins went Sunday to visit her brother, Bill Beavin, who is sick at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. D. Taul, of Phalah.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hambleton entertained at dinner last Sunday. The following guests: Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Frank and daughter, Valeria, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brickey and daughter, Lula, Mrs. O. W. Sanders and daughter, Pauline.

Slow in Louisville.

Mrs. Sallie Moorman left Monday for Louisville. She comes to Cloverport frequently and every time she brings a new joke with her. This week Mrs. Moorman is telling about a Cloverport man, whose name she did not give, who went to Louisville recently to spend a few days. The first night there was so much noise made by the street traffic that he could not sleep. The second night he said there was as much racket as the night before. The next day the Cloverporter said: "I never heard as many wagons going at night in my life, they must be mighty behind in their hauling."

BARGAINS IN PICTURE FRAMES

$3.00 Frames for $1.49
2.50 Frames for 1.39
2.00 Frames for 1.19

LET US FILL YOUR NEXT GROCERY ORDER
Staple Groceries at Reasonable Prices

FULL WEIGHT AND HIGHEST QUALITY

TRADE WITH US AND NEVER BE IN DEBT

MRS. J. S. LOVE,
First St. Irvington, Ky.

PLATFORM ADOPTED BY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The platform of the Republican party in Kentucky, adopted by the State convention is as follows:

The Republican party in Kentucky, in convention assembled, adopts the following platform:

First: We recognize the high character and ability and the distinguished public service of President Taft and cordially endorse his administration and unreservedly endorse him for re-nomination in 1912. We heartily commend our Republican Senator and our Representatives in Congress for the assistance they have given the national administration.

Second:—We approve and endorse the Republican administration of the affairs of the state, and we approve and endorse all means employed by that administration for the preservation of law and order, and favor the passage of such additional laws as may be necessary for that purpose.

Third:—We arraign the Democratic party of Kentucky not only for its failure to comply with, but for its flagrant violation of the laws of the United States, requiring the apportionment of Congressional districts, and of the constitution of the State, directing the apportionment of Judicial, Senatorial and Legislative districts. We denounce the present apportionment as unjust and unconstitutional, and, in many instances, a denial of equal representation to people in different sections of the State. We demand that equal representation shall be given to all the people of the State, and that the rights of all shall be protected by a just and fair apportionment law.

Fourth:—We demand the reform of the election laws for the purpose of securing fair and free election; the repeal of the law which provides for registration certificates and makes them a commodity in the local market; the passage of a Corrupt Practices act which shall limit the size of campaign funds in both primary and regular elections and provide for complete publicity in respect thereto, both before and after elections; an effective prohibition of campaign contributions by corporations, and for bi-partisan control of elections.

Fifth:—We demand the passage of a law providing for compulsory direct primary elections by the leading parties, held by the State at the expense of the State and with severe penalties for any infraction of the law.

Sixth:—We favor an amendment to the State law permitting and encouraging joint nominations of the same candidate by different parties.

Seventh:—The judiciary of the State, in both the Circuit and Appellate courts, should be chosen on non-partisan grounds and a confidence in office of faithful judicial public servants should be determined by no other qualification than fitness.

Eighth:—We demand a compliance with the plain requirements of the constitution by the enactment of a uniform local option law, with the county as the governing unit.

Ninth:—The first duty of the State is to provide for the education of all its children. While we favor the present law prohibiting mixed schools, we nevertheless favor the granting of equal educational privileges to the children of both races. We demand that the public schools of the State shall be taken and kept entirely out of politics and that the interest and welfare of the children shall have first consideration in all school matters. We call for better schools and schoolhouses, for longer school terms in the country and for better pay for the teachers, and that all elections for school trustees be held on different days from other elections. We favor separate manual training schools in every county in the State for both races, and we favor compulsory attendance of children of school age.

Tenth:—We unqualifiedly condemn and denounce the "Third House," all corrupt lobbying and improper methods used to influence legislation, and we demand that such a law be passed as will provide adequate punishment for such practices, and it this cannot be otherwise accomplished, we favor such measures as will place more directly in the hands of the people the power to correct this evil.

Eleventh:—We favor either the creation of a competent and effective public utilities commission, or the grant to the Railroad Commission of the power to regulate such utilities.

Twelfth:—We demand the enactment of a law providing for bi-partisan control of penal and charitable institutions, and for the abolition of contract convict labor; and we denounce the Board of Prison Commissioners in hiring out the children under their charge at the Reform School for the benefit of whose morals and education that institution was originally established.

Thirteenth:—We favor the adoption of an amendment to the Federal Constitution, providing for the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people.

Fourteenth:—We favor a uniform system of accounting in public offices and the abolition of all useless offices.

Fifteenth:—We oppose double taxation and favor a thorough revision of the tax laws which will equally distribute the burdens of taxation, reduce the rate and not only retain the capital now invested but invite the investment of other capital into the State. We favor the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment enlarging the power of the General Assembly in the matter of taxation, and when such additional law is passed, to make it effectual only when submitted to and approved by a majority of the people who vote upon the same. We favor such regulation by law as will consolidate assessment and collection of taxes so that the cost of collection may be materially reduced. We recognize the obligation the State is under to the disinterested men who have given their time and attention and of their means to the investigation and consideration of the question of the revenue laws of the State.

Sixteenth:—We favor the adoption of a just and conservative law providing for the arbitration and labor disputes.

Seventeenth:—We favor the passage of laws which shall make effective the constitutional provision against the issuance of free passes to officials and their families.

Eighteenth:—We favor the adoption of legislation to make effective the constitutional amendment in favor of good roads.

Nineteenth:—We favor the passage of a law providing for the thorough and effective inspection of State banks.

Twentieth:—We favor further legislation for the protection of miners from unnecessary bodily injury.

Twenty-first:—We demand that American citizens abroad, whether native born or naturalized and of whatever race or creed, shall be secure in the enjoyment of all rights and privileges provided by our treaties.

Twenty-second:—We favor the enactment of a law to punish the white slave traffic in the State.

Twenty-third:—We denounce lynchings and mobs of every character and favor the passage of a law that will punish by fine, imprisonment and summary removal from office, any peace officer who fails to protect a prisoner in his custody.

We hereby appeal to all citizens of this Commonwealth, irrespective of party affiliations, to support the principles herein enunciated.

John W. Langley, Chairman,
Frank M. Fisher,
J. H. Gilliam,
George DuKelle,
Richard C. Stoll,
R. C. McClure,
Caleb Powers,
W. D. Cochran,
James Breathitt,
C. M. Barnett,
Maurice L. Galvin,
Louis L. Walker,
A. J. Kirk.

Happiest Girl in Lincoln.
A Lincoln, Neb., girl writes, "I had been ailing for some time with chronic constipation and stomach trouble. I began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and in three days I was able to be up and got better right along. I am the proudest girl in Lincoln to find such a good medicine." For sale by All Dealers.

McGAVOCK.

Miss Vina Hathaway, of Owensboro, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Lissie Humphrey, for a few days.

Miss Hallie Beatty left Sunday to begin her school at Jackson. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Nellie, who will enter school at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Knight spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, of Victoria.

J. M. Beatty spent Saturday the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beatty.

Mrs. J. M. Beatty and daughter, Miss Nora, were in Cloverport Wednesday shopping.

"Bread baking is guaranteed to be a success if you use Lewisport BEST flour."

Sprains require careful treatment. Keep quiet and apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. It will remove the soreness and quickly restore the parts to a healthy condition. For sale by All Dealers.

Aged Kentuckian Dies at Tucker's School House.

William S. Hall died of Bright's disease. He was born in Hancock county Oct. 23, 1829 and died July 10, 1911. His occupation in early life was flat-boating on the Ohio river. He was well known from Louisville to New Orleans. He was a democrat. Capt. Hall often spoke of the days when he had to muster twice-a-week. He remembered when the Methodist church was divided and his parents took their place in the ranks of the M. E. South. He was baptized in infancy. Seven children, 23 grand-children and 3 great-grand-children survive. All his children live in Kentucky.

Rev. Jarboe expects to begin a revival here next Sunday. We wish him success and it is greatly needed.

We have good rains, crops look well and people are surviving the hot weather.

Most disgusting skin eruptions, scrofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is a cleansing blood tonic. Makes you clear-eyed, clear-brained, clear-skinned.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it
Would Bring to Cloverport Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

'Twould save much needless woe.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. Charles Stephens, 326 Clay St., Owensboro, Ky., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and believe they are a good remedy. I did not take them exactly as directed but they strengthened my back and relieved me of the acute pain. When I felt better, I would stop taking them instead of continuing their use until a complete cure was effected. I have improved in many ways since using Doan's Kidney Pills and can recommend them highly to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Epworth League Notes.

At the July business meeting of the Cloverport Epworth League several moves were made that showed the life of this Chapter, and are noted in the following paragraphs.

Last year $35.00 was pledged at the Louisville Conference for missions. This pledge was given as a free-will offering and $5.00 over this amount was given. The free will giving has been adopted by this Chapter instead of given entertainments for the purpose of raising money. The idea was suggested by Rev. Dillon and Mrs. Dillon. Although the Leaguers bitterly opposed it last year, they are being converted that it is the only way to support this great work.

A move was made at this meeting to give a lawn fete to raise funds for a certain debt, but only six voted for the plan and ten against it.

Strenuous efforts are being made to collect back dues and all those in arrears, please pay what you can to the treasurer.

No man in Kentucky has been more interested in League work than Hugh B. Fleece, who for four years has been President of the League Conference. Although Mr. Fleece is a busy member of the law firm of DuKelle & Fleece, of Louisville, he consented to act as chairman of an important committee for the Conference.

The Echo meeting of the annual conference held Sunday evening at the devotional hour of the League service here was in charge of the delegates, Miss Dehaven and Miss Leonora McGavock. The program was continued during the church hour by the pastor and Miss Allene Hardaway.

The conference pledged $1200 this year; $50 of this was pledged by the Cloverport League. One thousand dollars will be used for missionary work in Cuba.

The attendance at Elizabethtown was 137 and the guests were royally entertained. Next year the meeting will be held at Hopkinsville.

NOTICE.

We have many subscribers who can afford to take the News one year, who are subscribing for it every three months. We wish all who can conveniently give us yearly subscription, would do so, as it is quite a little work to change the dates so often and frequently you miss copies of the paper. Thanking you for favoring us in this way, I am, Respectfully, John D. Habbage.

THE OLD RELIABLE BRECKINRIDGE BANK

Cloverport, Ky. Organized 1872

OUR RECORD:

39 years of honorable dealing. Passed through three panics and paid every legitimate claim to its full amount on demand. Never sealed a check.

An absolutely Safe Place to do Business. 3 per cent on Time Deposits

EXAMINED APRIL 10-12 BY STATE BANK EXAMINER AND PRONOUNCED A No. 1

Statement of Condition of The Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Co.,

Hardinsburg, Ky., at the close of business June 30, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Notes and Bills	$251,838.76
Cash in Safe and Cash Items	16,975.13
Cash in Other Banks	47,908.03
Stocks and Bonds	6,051.74
Banking House and Lot	1,800.00
Other Real Estate	1,834.29
Furniture and Fixtures	400.00
Total	$326,807.95

LIABILITIES.

Capital Stock Paid in	$ 50,000.00
Surplus Fund	17,500.00
Undivided Profits	3,294.31
Dividend No. 42, 5 per cent.	2,500.00
Due Depositors	253,513.64
Total	$326,807.95

Very respectfully,

M. H. BEARD, Cashier.

Henderson Route Notes.

Catholic Church Picnic.

Stanley, Ky. July 19, $1.14 round trip from Cloverport. Tickets good to return same day.

Masonic Picnic, West Point.

July 29, $2.08 from Cloverport. Tickets good to return same day.

Reduced Rates to Atlantic City and return July 26 and Aug. 2.

Reduced Rates to Niagara Falls July 31, Aug. 11, Aug. 15.

NOTICE

Please do not ask us to publish card of thanks, resolutions or obituaries free

STEPHENSPOET.

Rev. Chas. Shepherd delivered two very interesting sermons at the Baptist church Sunday.

Mrs. Dr. Grant, (nee Sue Brashers), of Panama, was the guest of relatives here a few days last week.

Mrs. John Gardner is very low at this writing.

Mrs. Nellie Dieckman and children are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Dieckman.

Rev. Jarboe has returned from Kirk, where he has been holding a meeting.

Mrs. A. Cushman and children are spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Barbee, on Green Hill.

Mrs. M. L. Roberts was in Louisville last week.

Otis Dowell is having his cottage remodeled and is having another story added to it. It will be quite an improvement to the town when completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Larue Barkley and son, of Springfield, Ill., are the guests of their father and sister, Mrs. Percy Blaine.

C. W. BOULER MARION WEATHERHOLT J. W. PATE

Bohler and Company

GENERAL CONTRACTORS

Cloverport, Ky.

Road, Bridge Work and House Moving
Concreting, Pile Driving, Rock Work

Building Stone, Common and Fire Brick, Piling, Lumber, Lime and Cement carried in stock. Write for prices on anything in our line.

Estimates on Application

Business University Rises From Ashes.

The big fire at Bowling Green caused a deal of regret in Cloverport on account of its destruction to Denhardt Brothers newspaper plant and the building of the Bowling Green Business University. Information has been received that both the university and the journal are purchasing new equipment and will be better prepared than ever to serve their friends. The University, thirty years old, is happily preparing for a glorious opening to young students in September.

W. J. Schopp has returned from a business trip to Louisville. Mrs. G. W. Payne and daughter, Miss Esther, and Mrs. Pike Conn attended the funeral of Mrs. Henry Dowell at Sample Thursday.

Mrs. H. S. English, Jr., and children, have returned home after spending several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Belle Crawford.

Rev. Chas. Shepherd, wife and daughter, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Hawkins Saturday and Sunday.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport Best Flour.

Baseball News.

The Breckinridge News is pleased to publish reports of all ball games except those played on the Sabbath. Reporters please sign name.

FRYMIRE.

Wheat threshing is the order of the day.

Miss Lavina Curry has Typhoid fever.

Mrs. Hattie Frymire is on the sick list.

George Edward Shellman is at home from State College, Lexington, to spend his vacation.

School opened at Frymire last Monday, with Miss Hallie Severs as teacher.

Mrs. Annie Shetmire, of Chicago, is visiting her mother, Mrs. May Cart, of Union Star.

Hubert Bruner has his new bungalow about completed.

Mrs. May Graves, of Rising Star, Texas, is visiting Mrs. Annie Shellman, of Holt.

Hurrah for the News and its worthy editor.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

ROSETTA

Miss Jessie Garner, of Louisville, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Greer, of Texas, are visiting relatives here.

Miss Enla Chappell returned home from Cincinnati Thursday.

Charlie Mercer and Oscar Adkisson attended church at Custer Saturday.

Mrs. Press Milburn, of Custer, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. F. Board this week.

The people of this neighborhood are glad Mr. Wroe has opened a store at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Garner were called to the bedside of their son, G. C. Garner, at McDaniels Sunday.

Misses Aline Ross and Bessie Brown are spending the week at High Plains with friends and are attending the revival.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport BEST Flour.

For summer diarrhoea in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, and a speedy cure is certain. For sale by All Dealers.

GUSTON

Joe Lofter, after a two weeks visit to Frank Warmouth, returned to Louisville Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wiedman, of Sample, visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jolly Sunday.

Mrs. Mack Payne and children returned to Webster Monday, after a few days visit to Mrs. Will Board.

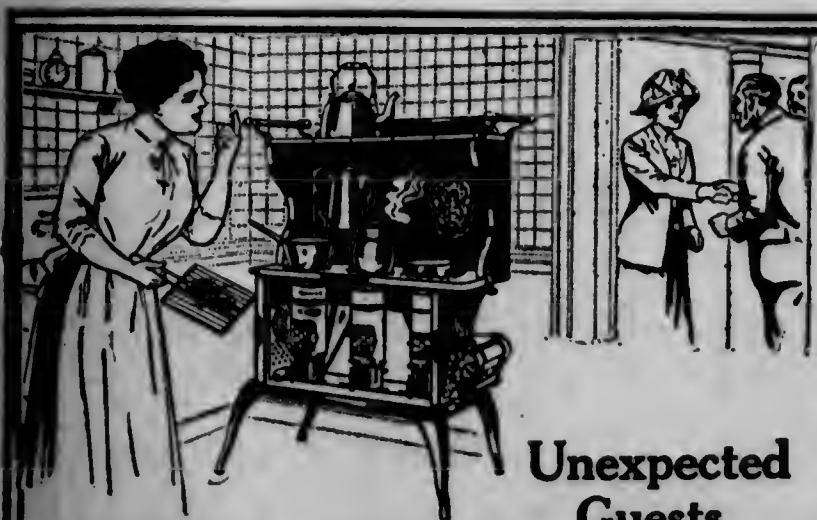

Mrs. G. P. Paul has returned home from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Owen Kasey, of Bewleyville.

Willie E. Young and Everett Neff returned to Moline, Ill., Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Henry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Anderson.

Mrs. Cbilds and daughter, of Louisville, visited Mrs. Mary Coleman last week.

Misses Lillie and Emma Supinger and little brother, of Frankfort, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. G. J. Neff.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

New Perfection
Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, burners, blue enamel chimneys. Handily finished throughout. The 2 and 3 burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with deep shelves, towel racks, etc. Dealers everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency.

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

A ROOMFUL OF GOOD FURNITURE

ONLY $2

cash buys this set of fine solid oak mission style library or living room furniture; and you can pay balance as it suits your convenience. The whole set, large rocker, arm chair, reception chair and handsome library table. Every piece is fullsize and exactly as pictured. Best grade of chase leather is used in the upholstering of the chairs and rocker. The springs are oil tempered and sag proof. The rocker is easily worth $7.50; the arm chair $7.00; the table $6.50, and the small chair $4.00—$25.00 in all. Just think of the value when you can get all four pieces for $13.75; only $2 cash and you can pay balance at your convenience.

Only $13.75

OUR GREAT STORE IS FULL OF VALUES LIKE THIS IN FURNITURE
CARPETS, RUGS, STOVES, ETC.

We own and operate the largest store in Louisville, and control the entire output of some of the largest Furniture Factories in the country, and do the largest business in the South.

YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD

with us; no matter where you live; and we give you just the same terms of cash or credit that we give to our thousands of regular customers right here at home. To show you how fair we are and how much we appreciate the trade of good people who do not live in Louisville,

WE PAY THE FREIGHT

to your home station; thus putting you on exactly the same footing with customers who come right into our stores. WRITE US TO-DAY, and tell us just what you would like to buy in Furniture, Baby Carriages or Go-carts, Refrigerators, Stoves, Carpets, Rugs, Linoleums or Matting; and we will reply by return mail, giving you full particulars of the wonderfully low prices we can make, and the easy terms we will be glad to give you. We ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE every article we sell and anything that is not exactly as represented will be taken back and the MONEY REFUNDED.

Cut out and fill in the COUPON in this ad. and mail IT TO US TO-DAY.

Order One of Our 4-Passenger
Lawn Swings, only

$3.98

313-315 W. MARKET ST.
Bensinger
OUTFITTING CO.
LOUISVILLE, KY.

COUPON.

BENSINGER OUTFITTING CO.,
Louisville, Ky.

I clip this Coupon from the
BRECKENRIDGE NEWS,
CLOVERPORT, KY.

and would like to have full particulars as to

Name _____
P. O. _____
Freight Office _____

Elizabeth Hendrick and The Golden Sunsets

If you have lived long enough to understand a mother's anxiety, if you know the joy of being a grand-mother, the greatness of being a great-grand mother, perhaps you may know what life has meant to Elizabeth Hendrick. She has seen, at least, thirty thousand beautiful sunsets, for the seventh day of this month was the anniversary of her eighty-fourth birthday.

At her home in Meade county, near Guston, where she was born and spent her girlhood days, this honorable occasion was enjoyed by four generations of the family: her daughter, Mrs.

Bettie H. McCall, her grand-daughter, Mrs. Edwin H. Jolly and her great grand daughter, Elizabeth Claire Jolly, her little namesake.

Mrs. Hendrick is hale and hearty, able to attend to her farm and transacts all her business. She is the mother of eleven children, eight of whom are living. They are: Garland F. Hendrick, Mrs. C. G. Wylder, Mrs. Wm. Simmons, of Oklahoma; Dr. T. J. Hendrick, of Webster; J. A. Hendrick, of Guston; Mrs. Bettie H. McCall, of Irvington, and Miss Hannah and Lucie Hendrick, who live with their mother.

spent the week end with friends in the Raymond neighborhood.

Miss Lillian Granel spent Sunday with Miss Ida Dutschke, of Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Basham were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roll Miller, of Webster, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doan were at Irvington one day last week shopping.

Louis Seim, of Indiana, is the guest of Frank Doan, this week.

Byron Johnson, of Garfield, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Grayson Payne last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Burch, of St. Louis, is at home this week on a visit.

Frank Claycomb, of Union Star, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. A. Dutschke, last week.

Mercer Basham and sister, Jennie, visited their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Flake Ater, of Irvington, Sunday.

There is to be an all day meeting at Walnut Grove next Sunday, July 23rd.

Every body invited to attend and a special invitation to John D. Babbage. There will be plenty of dinner for all.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour."

HARDINSBURG

Come to the Fair August 22, 23, 24.

Jesse Lee Winebrenner is visiting his uncles, T. L. and J. T. Smith.

Miss Mabel Brown, of Brandenburg, was the guest of Mrs. J. J. Willett last week.

Miss Anna Klucheloe has returned home after an eight months visit to her sisters in California.

The four-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. David Penick died at Mr. J. B. Stith's Tuesday night of last week and was buried at Custer the following day. To the bereaved parents we extend our sympathy.

Miss Carrie Walls is visiting her sister, Mrs. Joe Trent, of Custer.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeno Hendrick are visitors of Mrs. C. B. Miller at Eddyville.

Mrs. L. B. McCubbin and daughter, Ruth, of National City, Cal., are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Kincheloe.

Miss Mamie Mattingly has gone to Evansville to visit her sister, Mrs. Lawrence.

Amos Board has returned from a stay at Tar Springs.

Herbert Hall, clerk for B. F. Beard & Co., is out for a vacation this week.

The following from here attended the Republican Convention last week: Messrs. W. S. Ball, A. R. Kincheloe, Herbert, Arthur and Daily Beard and G. D. Shellman.

Mrs. Arthur Jarboe died last Wednesday and was buried in the Catholic cemetery Thursday. Mr. Jarboe has the sympathy of the community.

Miss Mary Leigh Gregory, of Harned, has returned home after a visit to relatives and friends.

Mrs. Thomas Withers and mother, Mrs. Barnett, left this morning for a visit to their old home in Virginia.

Misses Agnes McGill, Mary Leigh Gregory and Lum McGill visited Mrs. Orrin Hardin last week.

Mrs. Marcella Sheeran has returned from St. Joseph's Infirmary after having undergone an operation.

The fair will be something great.

Miss Annie Hendrick visited Mrs. Robt. Hendrick last week.

The president, Arthur Beard, and secretary, Jno. M. Skillman, of the fair, are doing everything in their power to make this the cleanest and best fair that Breckenridge has ever had.

J. F. Miller has returned home after a two weeks vacation.

Miss Myrtle Withers is very sick.

The farmers in this community are through threshing their wheat and the yield is much better than was expected.

Mrs. Denule Miller and children, William, Anna Belle and George Evans Miller, have returned home after being the guests of Mrs. Hubert DeJarnette for a week.

Samuel Evans is spending his vacation in Lewisport.

Mrs. Forest Lightfoot and daughter, Jaue, are the guests of Mrs. Herbert Beard.

Everett Ashcraft, of Irvington, was a visitor in town Sunday.

Mrs. Milton Coke and baby are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beard.

C. P. Edmunds, of Louisville, was the guest of Mrs. Lucy Hughes Sunday and Monday.

The Owensboro baseball team played the Hardinsburg team Saturday. Score 7 to 2 in favor of Owensboro.

Will You Join Us?

This is a cordial invitation to YOU to become a depositor of this institution—a bank that is under the management of a banking force of the highest integrity and efficiency.

Mail deposits are solicited. We carry fire and burglary insurance and pay interest on time deposits.

THE FARMERS BANK, :: Hardinsburg, Ky.

J. D. SHAW, Cashier.

Mrs. Alvin Skillman entertained at dinner Thursday Mrs. H. M. Beard, Mrs. Forest Lightfoot and daughter, Miss Jane.

Mrs. Judith DeJarnette, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Beard and children returned Tuesday from a two weeks visit to Lake Winona.

Mrs. Ella Heasley is out after a two weeks illness.

W. J. Robertson, of Glen Dean, was in town on business Saturday.

The following are on the sick list: Misses Myrtle Withers, Annie Lee Bishop, Wilbema Eskridge, Jeannette Hook, Mrs. J. T. Hoben.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport BEST Flour." Sold by J. H. Gardner.

The Path Now Easy For Lovers.

Richard Le Gallienne, tiring of the eternal will of those who decry the present as a dull, prosaic, all-business age and bewail the passing of the "good old days of poetry and romance," has written for the August number of The Smart Set a strong argument against this theory.

Never, he says, have conditions been so conducive to romance as they are today. Modern inventions have made the path easy for lovers. A century ago a woman waited for weeks or even months for a message from a distant lover; today "long distance" brings them into direct communication when ever the desire arises—and even may she speak with him far out at sea by means of the wireless, while by means of the phonograph his very voice may ring in her ears at any hour of the day she wills to press a button. Romance dead? Every invention of man—the railroad, the motor car, the telegraph, the printing press, the aeroplane—joins in a great world movement to further the plans and hopes of lovers.

Good For Gaps.

To cure chickens of the gaps put three tablespoonfuls of formaldehyde in a gallon of water. Sprinkle on the ground where you feed the chickens after they have gone to roost. This is deadly poison. Further particulars can be given by Mrs. Robert Pierce.

Cloverport Station Pretty.

The station in this city has been beautifully improved, repainted and repaired in many ways. The ladies' room is now used for white persons only and the men's room is used by the colored people. The park is one of the most attractive places in town, the trees and vines have made it extremely pleasant this summer. H. Behen, who is the ticket agent and manager of the station, has taken every step to give the public the the best service possible here. Mr. Behen is appreciated by the company and the city, and he is being highly commended for his efforts.

Card of Thanks.

We want to thank our friends, neighbors, Rev. Frank Lewis and the railroad officials for kindness shown us during the illness and at the death of Capt. F. Marion Rynn.

The Family.

Get What You Go For.

The fellow that goes after business the hardest is the one who gets it. People eat as much and wear as much as they ever did. If you are not selling them perhaps you have not pushed your business as hard as the other fellow.—Hartford Republican.

Frank Beavin Dead.

Word was received here of the death of Frank Beavin which occurred Sunday night at Mattingly. He leaves a wife and two children and one sister, Mrs. Bertha Camp. His mother, Mrs. Allen Beavin Miller survives.

Subscribe Now

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS,

JNO. D. BABBAGE SONS' PUBLISHING CO.

Issued Every Wednesday.

EIGHT PAGES.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1911

Subscription Price $1.00 a year in advance.
BUSINESS LOCALS 10 cents per line, and 5 cents for each additional insertion.

CARDS OF THANKS over five lines charged for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

OBITUARIES charged for at the rate of 5 cents per line. money in advance.

Examine the label on your paper. If it is not correct please notify us.

Who is real interested in our boys between the ages of ten and nineteen years? A Boy Scout organization is what they want in Cloverport.

Dr. J. H. Hart, Hon. D. C. Moorman and Frank Ruppert are being mentioned as suitable men to make the race on the Democratic ticket for Representative.

The country schools are opening all over the county. Pretty hot weather for the youngsters to study, but they must remember 'tis best to make hay while the sun shines.

The address delivered by Claude Mercer at Bardstown in June on the subject of "Duties and Responsibilities of a Bank Director," has been published and distributed in the form of a bulletin by the Kentucky Bankers' Association.

Argus, political prophet for Kentucky, is being quoted everywhere. His predictions of both the Democratic primary and Republican convention were as good as any man could make about politics. Both Democrats and Republicans read his column in the Herald.

We hope when the Louisville Herald gets into that new building it will leave its old clothes and come out in a new up-to-date suit that will make it look young, sprightly and attractive. The Herald is a good live paper, but there is something about its dress that doesn't appeal to us.

One of the best papers, and a well printed weekly, is The Telegram, published by Noel A. Berry of Uniontown. We have been reading this publication closely for several months, and find that the editorial department and news columns are filled with material well worth reading.

There never was such a howl as is going on now all over this county about the roads and bridges. "They are the worst ever," is in the mouths of everybody—Republicans, Democrats and Independents. And what everybody says must be true. The News man has not been over the roads much this season and does not know of their condition from seeing them. We hope, however, they are not as bad as reported, and if they are, the powers that be will get busy and fix them.

STAND BY THE BOY.

A while back when some Cloverport boys were too quickly criticised and misjudged in regard to some innocent incident that happened here, J. Byrne Severs said: "As long as I live I am going to stand by the boy."

The Cloverport boys of the ages of twelve and fifteen years are entirely lost sight of seemingly, and they run the streets at nights and on Sunday lost for entertainment, profitable employment and attention. The girls their age have their clubs, but the boys seem to have no tie that binds them. The Scout movement here would be a great thing. What a benefit and pleasure it would be for young Cloverport to have a Scout leader? Isn't there some man in Cloverport who has the boy's interest at heart and can take up the matter seriously? This suggestion may pass from your mind as quickly as ink dries on paper, but we are hoping for the boy that some one will be completely fused with the idea and not satisfied until the boys of Cloverport are lined up for the best training and choicest sports the world can give them.

McCREARY'S SERVICES TO THE SOLDIERS.

In a speech last week, Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, advocating the retention on the Senate's pay roll of Jim Jones, the aged negro body guard of Jefferson Davis, took occasion to pay Senator McCreary a high tribute for his efforts in behalf of worthy veterans or their widows seeking pensions. In fact he said he had never known a Southern soldier who fought for the Confederacy, to object to deserving pensioners. "The most eloquent plea I ever heard," said he, "for a widow's pension was made by the former Senator from Kentucky, Mr. McCreary, a Southern soldier, behind committee doors, where it was not for public effect."

It was said of Senator McCreary, when he represented for twelve years in Congress the Eighth district of this State, that no Federal soldier ever appealed to him in vain and that he was a Republican cut no figure in his efforts in his behalf. The Senator makes it a point after being elected to office to serve the whole people, not merely those who voted for him. He is the kind of a man we want at Frankfort, and by the eternal he is the kind of man we are going to have.—W. P. Walton in Lexington Herald.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

The Pennsylvania Railroad is sending out some educational literature designed to prevent the violation of common sense rules of conduct by passengers on railroad trains. The company hopes that by articles in the newspapers there may be brought home to careless persons a realization of the dangers inherent in such acts as getting off cars on the wrong side, leaning out of car windows, walking from one car to another while trains are in motion and standing on tracks to see if trains are approaching. It points out that such reckless conduct costs thousands of lives every year, and besides imposes on the railroads expenses that must ultimately be paid out of the receipts from transportation charges.

It is astonishing to see how careless some people are in boarding or getting off a train. They do not wait for a train to stop, but will jump off or on while it is moving. They never stop to look or listen for a train when they cross a track, making a careful inspection in each direction. These things are all against the rules of the company and should be observed carefully.

LITTLE STORIES WRITTEN

While The Press Thunders

BY LOUISE

My Dad And His Birthday.

Friday is papa's birthday. There is no one I would rather write about than my father. Just in the last ten years have I learned to know him well, but I can imagine seeing him a little boy, playing under the locust trees up on the corner—across from the Baptist church. He didn't go to school much and the most he learned of books is what his father made him study while grandfather was making a saddle, for he was a harness-maker and for a long time he thought his oldest son would follow the trade.

If papa ever went up the creek fishing he has never mentioned it. All I ever heard him say was about work and one thing that arouses his temper is for a man to complain of work. He loves work and it seems to me he did every kind until he found a printing press, then he became blind to all other trades and professions.

The only reason he ever did any other labor after he got a press, was because there was not a living in printer's ink in the old days when everybody did not think it necessary to use printed stationery. Papa used to handle the express and had to go to the boats all hours of the night, passing through the covered bridge without a body guard or a pistol. He has carried hundreds of dollars, but no pistol did he need and today his children are afraid at the sight of one. He tells us with pride about his experiences in war times selling copies of the Courier-Journal for as much as a dollar each.

I never heard but one joke on papa and Mr. Dave Moorman, of Glen Dean, takes pleasure in telling that. Once some one out in the country sent papa a note by a darkey. He came to town and asked for "John de Baptist". Everybody laughed at the colored uncle and told him that John the Baptist had his head cut off a thousand years back. But the darkey wasn't satisfied. He walked through the town looking for "John de Baptist" and when he saw papa handed him the note and asked: "Aint you's Mr. John de Baptist?"

In March 1901 there was an article in the Louisville Post about John D. Babbage and his loss by fire. Only those who had worked and lived and loved and lost with him, can understand what it must have meant to see his work of a life time in ashes. I never saw papa cry but once. Just a few weeks after the fire he was sitting in the Baptist church, his family and friends were with him. Big tears fell from his kind brown eyes. His little mother was there too—she had dreamed her last dream.

I think papa is a rich man. He has grit, patience; he can forget and forgive. He is contented and his joy comes from the things that he does and not what he should like to do. His tastes have changed, somewhat, he used to loathe a garden, now he delights in bugging potatoes. He doesn't go to sleep in church any more. This dad of mine is slow, but sure. There are two things he puts off going to the very last minute; one is a train, the other a meal, but he rarely ever misses either.

His mottoes have been, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead", and "Print no news that isn't fit". I have heard men and women say that my father always published a clean paper. He has spent many a dollar for his country, more for his county and would have been in right good financial circumstances had he not given so many free write-ups to his town. He is devoted to Cloverport, the very name is dear to him and he would as soon say something about his own child as to say anything against his home city.

He is my father, but I am not blind to his faults. He has three. He gets up too early. And papa will brag to mother about the good light-bread Mrs. McClothlan makes. Mrs. Lyddan's fried chicken and the other meals he eats from home. He sits and talks too long when I have a beau I like real well.

His greatest work has been teaching others to work. He has started many a boy and girl out in the world from his print-shop. He has patiently taught them and paid them by the day while they were learning. The most he asks of his friends is loyalty. He thinks that loyalty to each other in daily life is equal to the Golden Rule.

I could write on and on about my papa, wishing him a happy birthday. He will be sixty-six Friday. Mrs. Dell Hambleton and Mrs. Bob Pierce have the same date for a birthday. Glad I am that I am working by his side. His work I honor and to see him at it is one of my greatest pleasures. Girls who do not understand their fathers are unfortunate, indeed. All of papa's friends, I am sure, join me in wishing him many glorious returns of the day.

Let us thank The Middlesboro Record; The Jeffersonian, Argus in The Louisville Herald, Mr. Walton in The Lexington Herald, Mr. John Sneed in The Bullitt County Pioneer, The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times, The Meade County Messenger and The Green River News for making note of the absence of this column from The Breckenridge News. Just a few exchanges, except the old ones on the pantry shelves at home, have we seen during the last four weeks. After all, that which counts most is not how much you are missed, but how much you miss—when you are ill.

o o o

And there are others we want to thank; those who have sent messages that they have missed our paragraphs and short stories. Your names have been written in our little book where are kept the names of all those who have spoken one word to encourage and push us on in our work. Joy it is to glance over your names!

o o o

The only way to stop gossip and scandal is to stop up our ears with kindness. If we are truly kind, we will not listen to either.

o o o

People say many things for a joke when they really mean them for the truth.

o o o

Arthur Brisbane said that a newspaper is a mirror and reflects our everyday life. I believe that every person is a mirror, what I see in other people is what is within myself.

o o o

For The Girl Visitor.

Put your disappointments in the bottom of your trunk and take them home to mother—she will smooth them out all right.

o o o

Keep things lively at meal time. When there is a hush at the dinner table, say something, if you have to turn over a glass of water!

o o o

Tell your hostess the first thing when you expect to leave unless she has already set the time. Forty-two meals are

YOU CAN START YOUR BOY IN A BUSINESS OF HIS OWN WHEN YOU

save enough money

Start to save for your boy and your boy will start to save for himself, and for YOUR OLD AGE, too. Saving is a habit—the best habit you can have. Have you ever said to yourself "If I only had $1,000 NOW." The FIRST ONE THOUSAND saved, easily and quickly makes many thousand more. We will help you make your money grow fast by paying interest.

Let OUR Bank be YOUR Bank.

We pay 3% interest on Time Deposits.

THE BANK OF HARDINSBURG & TRUST CO.,
Hardinsburg, Ky.

enough for any girl to eat away from home.

o o o

Did you ever visit any place and write mother to write you to come home at once?

o o o

There are many persons who will think your visit is not a success unless you catch a beau. Let them wonder.

o o o

Every girl needs a visit. If you don't take one, you get rusty like the parlor carpet and people will soon want to put you in the back room.

o o o

If we can make-up our minds to keep the Sabbath day holy, there will never be a lonely Sunday.

Shake off the grip of your old enemy, Nasal Catarrh, by using Ely's Cream Balm. Then will all the swelling and soreness be driven out of the tender, inflamed membranes. The fits of sneezing will cease and the discharge, as offensive to others as to yourself, will be stopped when the causes that produce it are removed. Cleanliness, comfort and renewed health by the use of Cream Balm. Sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren St., New York.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE.

The undersigned, as assignee of Wm. Preston, will on Friday, the 28th day of July, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m., on the premises of Wm. Preston, in Cloverport, Ky., offer at Public Sale to the highest and best bidder, the stock of groceries, notions and fixtures, such as show-cases, etc. Also one popcorn and peanut roaster and one pair of computing scales. Said stock will be sold in parcels, or as a whole, as may be determined for the best interest of all interested.

All sums under $25, cash in hand. Sums above that amount will be on a credit of three months, the purchaser being required to execute bond with approved security, bearing interest from date.

V. G. BABBAGE,

Assignee.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

HENDERSON COUNTY FAIR HENDERSON, KY., JULY 25 26

$2.22 Cloverport to Henderson and return, July 25, 26, 27, 28, 29; good to return July 30.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour."

At Less Than Cost!

We have sold our stock of goods. It is to be turned over August 1st. We want to reduce the stock and in order to do this we will offer everything at and below cost.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Notions

in fact, every article will be marked down to a point that will compel you to buy whether you need the goods or not. Be sure and come and see what we have to offer.

Accounts and Produce Checks

All outstanding accounts not paid by August 1st will be placed in the hands of our attorney for collection.

Bring your produce checks in before August 1st as we cannot redeem them after that date.

W. C. Moorman
Glen Dean, Ky.

A Reliable Remedy
ELY'S CREAM BALM
 Is quickly absorbed.
 Gives Relief at Once.
 It cleanses, soothes,
 heals and protects
 the diseased membrane resulting from Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail. In liquid form, 75 cents.
 Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CATARRH
HAY FEVER

THIS PAPER REPRESENTS FOREIGN
 ADVERTISING BY THE

AMERICAN LIVES ASSOCIATION
 GENERAL OFFICES
 NEW YORK AND CHICAGO
 BRANCHES IN ALL THE PRINCIPAL CITIES

The Breckenridge News.
 WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1911

RATES FOR POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

For Precinct and city Offices..... $ 2.50
 For County Offices..... $ 5.00
 For State and District Offices..... $ 15.00
 For Calls, per line..... 10
 For Cards, per line..... 10
 For All Publications in the interest of individuals or expression of individual views per line..... 10

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET

For United States Senator,
OLLIE M. JAMES,
 of Crittenden.

For Governor,
JAMES B. McCREARY, of Madison.

For Lieutenant Governor,
E. J. McDERMOTT,
 of Louisville.

For State Treasurer,
THOMAS G. RHEA,
 of Logan.

For Auditor,
HENRY M. BOSWORTH, of Fayette.

For Attorney General,
JAMES GARNETT,
 of Adair.

For Secretary of State,
C. F. CRECELHIUS,
 of Pendleton.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction,
BARKSDALE HAMLETT,
 of Christian.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,
J. W. NEWMAN, of Woodford.

For Clerk of Court of Appeals,
R. L. GREENE, of Franklin.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Try the Home Bakeries fresh rolls.

Robert Moorman, of Glen Dean, is at French Lick Springs.

Brabandt, photographer, will be at Irvington July 27, 28, 29.

Miss Walcott, of Frankfort, is the guest of Mrs. Robert Polk.

Miss Ola Fallon is in Chicago the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl.

L. R. Ramp, of Kansas City, has been the guest of Anne S. Jarboe.

Misses Irene Jarboe and Anne S. Jarboe went to Louisville this week.

Mrs. H. C. Pate and daughter, Miss Claudia, spent Saturday in Louisville.

B. F. DeJarnette and son, Lafayette, of Hawesville, were here Wednesday.

All kinds of pies at the Home Bakery.

Mrs. Leon McGavock and son, John Hickman, went to Skillman Saturday.

Miss Eubanks, of Frankfort, was the guest of Mrs. Benton Eubanks last week.

Mrs. Mary J. Smith and daughter, Margaret Walker, were in town Monday.

Mrs. David Murray and Miss Mildred Murray, of Indianapolis, are visiting Mrs. Fred Ferry.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Murray are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chapin in Eastland.

Miss Jane Hamblen, of Louisville, is here the guest of her mother, Mrs. Adelle Hamblen.

Miss Jennie Green and Preston Green, of Falls of Rough, spent the week-end in Louisville.

Good coffee cakes at the Home Bakery.

Miss Ja Ja Ashburn, of Louisville, spent Sunday and Monday with Misses Louise and Mildred Babbage.

Miss Jane Crenshaw, of Versailles, and Miss Viola Lewis, of Louisville, are the guests of Mrs. David Phelps.

Clayton Beard, Mrs. Nina and Miss Floyd Nelson, of Winchester, Ill., have been the guests of Mrs. Annie Oelze.

Wallace Stephens and Freeman Hawley, of Hawesville, were the guests of Misses Julia and Katherine Wroe Sunday.

If you want to save money in buying jewelry, call on T. C. Lewis, the old reliable jeweler.

Mrs. Jasper Dyer arrived from Illinois recently, and will spend the summer with relatives here and in Owensboro.

Dr. Mary L. Graves (nee Miss Mary Shellman, of Union Star,) now of Rising Star, Texas, is visiting Mrs. J. M. Fitch.

You can get nice, fresh rolls and buns at the Home Bakery.

Miss Addie G. Ditto, of Louisville, who is visiting Mrs. John T. Ditto, in Decatur, Ill., expects to arrive home by July 20.

Taylor Scott, of Hardinsburg; Mrs. Ed Beard and son, of Louisville, have been the guests of Mrs. Mary Payne, in Stephensport.

Jno. Newman, the new baker, makes good pies, coffee cakes and rolls.

Misses Lillie Muir Wadler and Lula Severs and Mrs. Roscoe Severs, were guests of Mrs. John Kincheloe in Hardinsburg Sunday.

Wanted—35 fat sheep and 2 beef cattle for Masonic Barbecue.—H. L. Stader.

Allen Pierce, of this city; Mr. Wilson and Miss Daisy Dean, of Glen Dean, were guests of Miss Reba Lewis at Fordsville Sunday.

Mrs. A. P. King and little daughter, of Irvington, returned Monday from a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank McGary, of Kirk.

Go to the Home Bakery for your fresh bread.—Jno. Newman, baker.

Miss Lucile Hardin, Mrs. Fontaine and attractive little grand-son, Fontaine McGuffin, are here from Holt, the guests of Mrs. Emma Skillman.

John D. Babbage, Jr., of the Lanston Monotype Company, arrived home from Philadelphia Saturday night to spend a few days with his parents.

Mr. Haley, of Utica; Misses Mattie and Susie Black, and Oscar Black, of Addison, were here last week to see Miss Minnie Embry, who is still seriously ill.

HEROIC DEED IS FOLLOWED BY DEATH.

James Barger Succumbs to Injuries Received While Rescuing His Child From Fire.

James Barger, who was terribly burned while rescuing his eight-year-old daughter from their burning home near Lake Yosemite Wednesday night, died this morning about 11 o'clock at the Merced sanatorium, after suffering 36 hours of agony. As told in yesterday's Sun, Mr. Barger sustained his fatal injuries in a heroic effort to save his child.

It appears that Mrs. Barger and their infant were sleeping in one room of the house and Mr. Barger and their other two children were in another room. Mrs. Barger was aroused by the roaring of the flames that were destroying their home and called to her husband, at the same time carrying her infant out of the burning building. Mr. Barger picked up one of his children and carried her to safety and then returned for the other, a little girl eight years of age. By this time the flames had enveloped the entire structure and Mr. Barger and the little girl were severely burned before escaping from the house. Mr. Barger was burned so severely that almost his entire body was a mass of cooked flesh. In this condition the heroic father carried his suffering child to the home of Mr. Hamilton, their nearest neighbor, a distance of about one mile.

Mrs. Barger and two of the children escaped with their night clothes, burned from their bodies. Naked and suffering the tortures of death, this man's only thought was to get his child to a place where she could receive care at the earliest possible moment. The act was one of great heroism and devotion.

The deceased was a native of Kentucky and was 38 years of age. Until two weeks ago he resided for some time in Delano, Kern county, from which place he came to Merced to accept a position with the Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Company as canal superintendent, and took up his residence in a house near Lake Yosemite until such time as he could find another and better location. He was a man of splen-

BERT MCCARTY DIES OF INJURIES

Was Waylaid And Robbed—No Clue To The Murderer—Was Agent For L. H. & St. L. R. R. At Lewisport

DEED WAS MOST HORRIBLE

Bert McCarty, ticket agent for the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway Company at Lewisport, died at the hospital in Owensboro this afternoon about 1:30 o'clock, as the result of being waylaid and having his skull fractured, while enroute to his home from the depot Tuesday night.

The deed was a most horrible one, the young man was beaten almost into insensibility by some unknown person to whom the officers of Hancock county have failed to get any clue.

McCarty was found about 100 yards from the depot, lying in a dark place by three strangers, who had gotten off the "plug," and they immediately gave the alarm. McCarty was removed to his home, and it was found that his skull was fractured. He was brought to Owensboro on the midnight train, and taken to the hospital, where an operation was performed by Drs. Watkins, Irvin, Griffin, and Dr. Knox, of Lewisport.

It was apparent from the beginning that there was no hope for the injured man, and after lingering for about 20 hours, death finally relieved him of his suffering.

McCarty was assaulted with a single-treg, which was found a short distance from his body. Several freight bills and papers were scattered on the ground, which is conclusive that he had been waylaid and robbed. It is thought that the highwayman secured a considerable amount of money, as it is known that McCarty collected $35 from one man on Tuesday, and he usually carried the company's money home with him at night.

At the request of the railroad officials, Eugene Miller and officer Robbins, went to Lewisport this morning in an automobile, carrying the two bloodhounds, but on account of the drought, the dogs could not get any scent whatever.

McCarty was a married man, about 35 years of age, and has three sons.—Owensboro Inquirer.

did character, a hard worker, and the Crocker people had planned to place him in a splendid position, as they were very much pleased with him. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of the World, holding his membership in Delano lodge. The funeral will be held from the chapel of G. E. Nurdgren tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and interment will be in the I. O. O. F. cemetery.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved wife and the three children who have been so suddenly and shockingly deprived of the love and protection of a good husband and father.—The Sun, Merced, Oklahoma.

James Barger was a brother of Walter Barger, of Frymire, and left this county several years ago for Oklahoma. His many friends will regret to learn of his tragic death.

BIG RUN OF CATTLE

Causes Decline in the Market—Choice Butcher Stock Steady. Hogs a Dime Higher. Sheep and Lambs Steady.

Louisville, July 18.—The receipts of cattle today were 2,048 head, which number included about 300 distillery cattle that were sold late Saturday evening. There was a pretty good attendance of local traders and butchers, as well as some out-of-town buyers, but with a visible supply that would easily cover all requirements, the trade was dull from the start, with prices generally below last week's level. A few early sales of strictly choice, handy butcher cattle were made at close up to steady figures, but the majority of the transactions on that class of stock were consummated at a decline of 10c, while the medium and undesirable kinds, Wants.

For Sale—Cottage.
 FOR SALE—Two-room cottage; fine shade, good cellar, 2 oil closets, barn, house, poultry yard, good well of water in lot. First place in town in false pond. Good pasture for cow, hogs and horse. Call and take a look before buying elsewhere. Thos. Smith, Stephensport, Ky.

For Sale
 FOR SALE—Tractor Engine. One in 11 P. crank and one 10 H. P. Gaur, Scott, both engines in good condition, and will be sold at low prices on easy terms. Address Sam Thomas, Hawesville, Ky.

For Sale
 FOR SALE—A 3 horse power stationary gas engine; Watkins make, in good repair.—Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

For Sale
 FOR SALE—Hoods, Mortgages and all kinds of legal blanks.—Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

For Sale—Scholarship
 FOR SALE—Scholarship in the Bowling Green University, good in any department of that University. Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

We may not be your nearest druggist, but we try to come the nearest pleasing you including half-fat, grussy or "near-beef" kinds, sold dull at 10c/25c lower prices. The feeder and stocker demand was light, and for the best grades, prices were below last week, and trading especially slow on the medium and common kinds. Bulls were dull, canners and cutter cows were lower. Milch cows slow. The heavy cattle trade was dull. Even choice kinds were lower, and the medium to fair shipping steers were hard to get rid of. Pens not entirely cleared and the trade closed dull.

GIBSON & SON

Calves—Receipts 160. Market slow. The best 6c/64c; medium 5c/6c; common 2 1/2c/5c, and very slow.

Hogs—Receipts, 1,114. Market opened early, and on account of the light supply, salesmen put a dime on the price. Selected 165 pounds and up selling at $6.75; 120 to 165 pounds, $6.65; pigs, $6.35 down; roughs, $6 down. The pens were well cleared and the market closed steady.

Sheep and Lambs—The receipts were 8,731 head. As usual at this season of the year on Monday the quality of the lambs was not extra good. Only a few loads of choice lambs here. Market slow in opening, but indications pointed toward a steady market, prospects being that the best lambs would sell at $6.50/7; seconds, $4.25/4.75; culls, $2.50/3; fat sheep, $3.25 down. Medium and common sheep slow and down as low as 1c per pound for the common kinds.

They Were "Hung Up."
 "I like you, Jim," said the practical girl, "but you've been a bachelor for so many years that I fear you have fallen into disgraceful habits. You must be awfully careless, for instance, about your wardrobe."
 "My dear," answered the suitor, "I give you my word that every rag I am not wearing now is hung up."
 She believed him and accepted him. But what he meant by "hung up" and what she understood by it were two different things.—New York Journal.

Wasted Time.
 "You want that book bound, sir? Yes, sir. It will cost 3 marks. But there are pictures in it. That will make it 5 marks, sir."
 "But why is it more with pictures?"
 "Oh, you see, sir, my helper will waste so much time looking at them!"
 —Fliegende Blätter.

He Was Modest.
 Tramp—Kin I get a bite to eat here? Woman—Yes. If you'll saw that pile of wood. Tramp (sizing up the job)—I ain't askin' for no ten dollar a plate banquet, lady.—Boston Transcript.

The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

American Beauty Corsets

From $1.00 to $3.00

A sheet of Music free with every American Beauty.

Have a Good Line of 50c Corsets

J. C. NOLTE & BRO.
 CLOVERPORT, KY.

AMERICAN BEAUTY Style 403
 Kalamazoo Corset Co., Makers

Lumber

We aim to maintain the best assorted stock of thoroughly seasoned, correctly graded lumber that can be obtained. Our stock of

Plaster

We are headquarters for the best grade of plaster manufactured. See us before you buy. We also want to talk to you on the subject of

Lime

We can give you some good "pointers" on that score and will be glad to do it. Come in and see us. We sell only the best and most popular brands of

WEST POINT BRICK & LUMBER CO.
 WEST POINT, KENTUCKY

Shingles

has been carefully selected and we know that you will be highly pleased if you place your order with us. We also carry a line stock of clear

Red Cedar

Cement

STRENGTH

FIGURES

YOU KNOW HOW HARD IT IS TO MAKE MONEY NOW—CONSIDER HOW HARD IT WILL BE WHEN YOU ARE PAST YOUR PRIME. LAY ASIDE FOR OLD AGE AND BE INDEPENDENT OF THE CHARITY OF RELATIVES OR FRIENDS. KEEP THE FIGURES GROWING IN YOUR BANK BOOK BY REGULAR WEEKLY DEPOSITS. IF YOU HAVE NO ACCOUNT—START TODAY

BANK OF CLOVERPORT

Statement of the Condition of the FARMERS BANK Hardinsburg, Ky.

At the close of business June 30, 1911

Resources		Liabilities
Bills discounted	$80,242 40	Capital stock	$15,000 00
Stocks and Bonds	3,280 00	Surplus	7,000 00
Cash and due from Banks	12,504 23	Undivided Profits	53 02
Real Estate	434 55	Due other banks	416 53
Banking house and lot	1,000 00	Deposits	76,041 88
Furniture and Fixtures	875 00	Total	$98,511 43
Overdrafts	175 25
Total	$98,511 43

We present the above statement and solicit your patronage; a dividend of 3 per cent placed to stockholders' credit and $1,000 added to surplus out of the earnings the last six months.

Very respectfully,
JOHN D. SHAW, Cashier

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1919.
By Anna Katharine Rohlf

CHAPTER IV.

COMMENTS AND REFLECTIONS.

"YOU say you were not blind to surrounding objects, even if they conveyed but little meaning to you," said Coroner Perry. "You must have seen, then, that the room where Miss Cumberland lay contained two small cordial glasses, both still moist with some liqueur."

"I noticed that, yes."

"Some one must have drunk with her?"

"I cannot contradict you."

"Was Miss Cumberland fond of that sort of thing?"

"She detested liquor of all kinds. She never drank. I never saw a woman so averse to wine."

"I spoke before I thought. I might better have been less emphatic, but the mystery of those glasses had affected me from the first."

"There was a third glass. We found it in the adjoining closet. It had not been used. That third glass has a meaning if only we could find it out. And a small flask of cordial. The latter seems pure enough."

"ONE OF OUR MEN SAW YOU WITH YOUR FINGER ON HER THROAT."

"I cannot understand it." The phrase had become stereotyped. No other suggested itself to me.

"The problem would be simple enough if it were not for those marks on her neck. You saw those, too, I take it?"

"Yes. Who made them? Who was the man? Do you know, Dr. Perry?"

"There were three glasses in those rooms. Only two were drunk from," he answered steadily. "Tomorrow I may be in a position to answer your question. I am not tonight."

Why did I take heart? Not a change, not the flicker of one, had passed over his countenance at my utterance of the word "aman." Either his official habit had stood him in wonderful stead or the police had failed so far to see any connection between this murder and the young girl whose footprints for all I knew still lingered on the stairs. Would the morrow reveal the fact that Adelaide's young sister had been with her in the hour of death or would the fates propitiously aid her in preserving this secret?

Thus the hours between 2 and 7 passed, when I fell into a fitful sleep, from which I was rudely awakened by a loud rattle at my door, followed by the entrance of the officer who had walked up and down the corridor all night.

"The wagon is here," said he. "Breakfast will be given you at the station."

To which Hexford, looking over his shoulder, added, "I'm sorry to say that we have here the warrant for your arrest. Can I do anything for you?"

"Warrant?" I burst out. "What do you want of a warrant? It is as a witness you seek to detain me, I presume?"

"No," was his brusque reply. "The charge upon which you are arrested is one of murder. You will have to appear before a magistrate."

"But I am innocent, absolutely innocent," I protested, the perspiration starting from every pore as the full meaning of the charge burst upon me. What I have told you was correct. I myself found her dead."

Hexford gave me a look.

"Don't talk," he kindly suggested. "Leave that to the lawyers." Then, as the other man turned aside for a moment, he whispered in my ear: "It's no go. One of our men saw you with your fingers on her throat. He had clambered into a pine tree, and the shade of the window was up. You had better come quietly. Not a soul believes you innocent."

This, then, was what had doomed me from the start—this and that partly burned letter. I understood now why the kind-hearted coroner, who loved my father, had urged me to tell my tale, hoping that I would explain this act and give him some opportunity to indulge in a doubt. And I had failed to respond to the hint he had given me. I had been seen lingering in my dead betrothed's throat and nothing I could now say or do would ever convince people that she was dead before my hands touched her, strangled by another's clutch. One person only in the whole world would know and feel how false this accusation was. And yesterday that one's trust in my guiltlessness would have thrown a ray of light upon the deepest infamy which could befall me. But today there had settled over that once innocent spirit a cloud of too impenetrable a nature for any light to struggle to and fro between us.

I could not contemplate that cloud. I could not dwell upon her misery or upon the revulsion of feeling which follows such impetuous acts. And it had been an impetuous act, the result of one of her rages. I had been told of these rages. I had even seen her in one. When they passed she was her lovable self once more and very penitent and very downcast. If all I feared were true she was suffering acutely now.

Turning to the officer next to me, I put the question which had been burning in my mind for hours:

"Tell me how you came to know there was trouble here. What brought you to this house? There can be nothing wrong in telling me that."

"Well, if you don't know," he began. "I do not," I broke in.

"I guess you'd better wait till the chief has had a word with you."

Where was Carmel, and how was she enduring these awful hours? Had repentance come and with it a desire to own her guilt? Did she think of me and the effect this unlooked-for death would have upon my feelings? That I should suffer arrest for her crime could not have entered her mind. I had seen her, but she had not seen me in the dark hall. No intimation of my dubious position or its inevitable consequences had reached her yet. When it did what would she do? I did not know her well enough to tell. The attraction she had felt for me had not been strong enough to lead her to accommodate herself to my wishes and marry me offhand, but it had been strong enough to nerve her arm in whatever attention she may have had with her jealous-minded sister. It was the temper and not the strength of the love which would tell in a strait like this. Would it prove of a generous kind? Should I have to combat her desire to take upon herself the full blame of her deed, with all its shame and penalties, or should I have the still deeper misery of finding her callous to my position, and welcoming what was going on in the house where all my thoughts, my fears and—shall I say it?—latent hopes were centered. To know Carmel ill and not to know how ill; to feel the threatening arm of the law hovering constantly over her head and neither to know the instant of its fall nor be given the least opportunity to divert it!

My examination before the magistrate held one element of comfort. Nothing in its whole tenor went to show that as yet she was in the least suspected of any participation in my so-called crime. But the knowledge which came later of how the police first learned of trouble at the clubhouse did not add to this sense of relief, whatever satisfaction it gave my curiosity. A cry of distress had come to them over the telephone, a wild cry in a woman's choked and tremulous voice: "Help at the Whispering Pines! Help!" That was all, or all they revealed to me. In their endeavor to find out whether or not I was present when this call was made I learned the nature of their own suspicions. They believed that Adelaide in some moment of prevision had managed to reach the telephone and send out this message.

It was in a condition of mingled dread and expectation that I opened the paper which was brought me the next morning. Arthur, the good-for-nothing brother, had returned from his wild carouse and had taken affairs in charge with something like spirit and a decent show of repentance for his own shortcomings and the mad taste for liquor which had led him away from home that night. Carmel was still ill and likely to be so for many days to come. Her case was diagnosed as one of brain fever and of a most dangerous type. Doctors and nurses were busy at her bedside, and little hope was held out of her being able to tell soon, if ever, what she knew of her sister's departure from the house on that fatal evening. That her testimony on this point would be invaluable was self-evident, for proofs were plenty of her having haunted her sister's rooms all the evening in a condition of more or less delirium. She was alone in the house, and this may have added to her anxieties, all of the servants having gone to the policeman's ball. It was on their return in the early morning hours that she had been discovered lying ill and injured before her sister's fireplace.

One fact was mentioned which set me thinking. The keys of the clubhouse had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

CHAPTER V.

"I AM AN INNOCENT MAN."

I STRUGGLED with my dilemmas for hours. I had relatives and I had friends, some of whom had come to see me and gone away deeply grieved at my reluctance. I was swayed, too, by another consideration. I had deeply loved my mother. She was dead, but I had her honor to think of. Should I be said she had a murderer for her son? In the height of my inner conflict I had almost cried aloud the fierce denial which would arise at this thought. But ere the word could leave my lips such a vision rose before me of a bewildering young face with wonderful eyes and a smile too innocent for guile and too loving for hypocrisy that I forgot my late antagonistic feelings, forgot the claims of my dear, dead mother and even those of my own future. Such passion and such devotion merited consideration from the man who had called them forth. I would not slight the claims of my dead mother, but I would give this young girl a chance for her life. Let others ferret out the fact that she had visited the clubhouse with her sister; I would not proclaim it. It was enough for me to proclaim my innocence.

house had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

CHAPTER V.

"I AM AN INNOCENT MAN."

I STRUGGLED with my dilemmas for hours. I had relatives and I had friends, some of whom had come to see me and gone away deeply grieved at my reluctance. I was swayed, too, by another consideration. I had deeply loved my mother. She was dead, but I had her honor to think of. Should I be said she had a murderer for her son? In the height of my inner conflict I had almost cried aloud the fierce denial which would arise at this thought. But ere the word could leave my lips such a vision rose before me of a bewildering young face with wonderful eyes and a smile too innocent for guile and too loving for hypocrisy that I forgot my late antagonistic feelings, forgot the claims of my dear, dead mother and even those of my own future. Such passion and such devotion merited consideration from the man who had called them forth. I would not slight the claims of my dead mother, but I would give this young girl a chance for her life. Let others ferret out the fact that she had visited the clubhouse with her sister; I would not proclaim it. It was enough for me to proclaim my innocence.

house had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

CHAPTER V.

"I AM AN INNOCENT MAN."

I STRUGGLED with my dilemmas for hours. I had relatives and I had friends, some of whom had come to see me and gone away deeply grieved at my reluctance. I was swayed, too, by another consideration. I had deeply loved my mother. She was dead, but I had her honor to think of. Should I be said she had a murderer for her son? In the height of my inner conflict I had almost cried aloud the fierce denial which would arise at this thought. But ere the word could leave my lips such a vision rose before me of a bewildering young face with wonderful eyes and a smile too innocent for guile and too loving for hypocrisy that I forgot my late antagonistic feelings, forgot the claims of my dear, dead mother and even those of my own future. Such passion and such devotion merited consideration from the man who had called them forth. I would not slight the claims of my dead mother, but I would give this young girl a chance for her life. Let others ferret out the fact that she had visited the clubhouse with her sister; I would not proclaim it. It was enough for me to proclaim my innocence.

house had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

CHAPTER V.

"I AM AN INNOCENT MAN."

I STRUGGLED with my dilemmas for hours. I had relatives and I had friends, some of whom had come to see me and gone away deeply grieved at my reluctance. I was swayed, too, by another consideration. I had deeply loved my mother. She was dead, but I had her honor to think of. Should I be said she had a murderer for her son? In the height of my inner conflict I had almost cried aloud the fierce denial which would arise at this thought. But ere the word could leave my lips such a vision rose before me of a bewildering young face with wonderful eyes and a smile too innocent for guile and too loving for hypocrisy that I forgot my late antagonistic feelings, forgot the claims of my dear, dead mother and even those of my own future. Such passion and such devotion merited consideration from the man who had called them forth. I would not slight the claims of my dead mother, but I would give this young girl a chance for her life. Let others ferret out the fact that she had visited the clubhouse with her sister; I would not proclaim it. It was enough for me to proclaim my innocence.

house had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

CHAPTER V.

"I AM AN INNOCENT MAN."

I STRUGGLED with my dilemmas for hours. I had relatives and I had friends, some of whom had come to see me and gone away deeply grieved at my reluctance. I was swayed, too, by another consideration. I had deeply loved my mother. She was dead, but I had her honor to think of. Should I be said she had a murderer for her son? In the height of my inner conflict I had almost cried aloud the fierce denial which would arise at this thought. But ere the word could leave my lips such a vision rose before me of a bewildering young face with wonderful eyes and a smile too innocent for guile and too loving for hypocrisy that I forgot my late antagonistic feelings, forgot the claims of my dear, dead mother and even those of my own future. Such passion and such devotion merited consideration from the man who had called them forth. I would not slight the claims of my dead mother, but I would give this young girl a chance for her life. Let others ferret out the fact that she had visited the clubhouse with her sister; I would not proclaim it. It was enough for me to proclaim my innocence.

house had been found lying on a table in the side hall of the Cumberland mansion—the keys which I have already mentioned as missing from my pocket—a alarming discovery which might have acted as a clue to the suspicious I feared if their presence there had not been explained by the waitress who had cleared the table after dinner. Coming upon these keys lying on the floor beside one of the chairs, she had carried them out into the hall and laid them where they would be more readily seen. She had not recognized the keys, but had taken it for granted that they belonged to Mr. Ranelagh, who had dined at the house that night.

They were my keys, and I have already related how I came to drop them on the floor. Had they but stayed there! Adelaide, or was it Carmel, might not have seen them and been led by some strange if not tragic purpose, incomprehensible to us now and possibly never to find full explanation, to enter the secret and forsaken spot where I later found them, the one dead, the other feeling in frenzy, but not in such a thoughtless frenzy as to forget these keys or to fail to lock the clubhouse door behind her. That she on her return home should have had sufficient presence of mind to toss these keys down in the same place from which she or her sister had taken them argued well for her clear-headedness up to that moment. The fever must have come on later.

The next paragraph detailed a fact startling enough to rouse my deepest interest. Zadok Brown, the Cumberland's coachman, declared that Arthur's cutter and what he called the gray mare had been out that night. They were both in place when he returned to the stable toward early morning, but the signs were unmistakable that both had been out in the snow since he left the stable at about 9. He had locked the stable door at that time, but the key always hung in the kitchen where any one could get it. This was on account of Arthur, who, if he wanted to go out late, sometimes harnessed a horse himself. Zadok judged that he had done so this night, though how the horse happened to be back and in her stall and no Mr. Arthur in the house it would take wiser heads than his to explain.

There was some comment made on this because Arthur had denied using his cutter that night. He declared instead that he had gone out on foot and designated the coachman's tale as all bosh.

As for myself, I felt inclined to believe that the mare had been out, that one or both of the women had harnessed her and that it was by these means that she had reached the Whispering Pines. Adelaide was far from strong and never addicted to walking under the most favorable conditions. I could understand now how Carmel had succeeded in returning in safety to her home. She had ridden both ways—a theory which likewise explained how she came to wear a man's derby and possibly a man's overcoat. With her skirts covered by a bearskin she would present a very fair figure of a man to any one who chanced to pass her.

These were my deductions drawn from my own knowledge. Would others who had not my knowledge be in anywise influenced to draw the same? Yet, if they let this point slip, where should I be? Human nature is human all the way through, and I could not help having moments when I asked myself if this young girl were worth the sacrifice I contemplated making for her. She was lovely to look at, amiable and of womanly promise save at those rare and poignant moments when passion would seize her in a gust which drove everything before it. That she had had provocation I did not doubt. Adelaide, for all her virtues was not an easy person to deal with. Upright and perfectly sincere herself, she had no sympathy with or comprehension for any lack of principle or any display of selfishness in others. She was a little cold, a little reserved, a little lacking in spontaneity, though always correct and always generous in her gifts and often in her acts.

any chance which diverted suspicion from herself? All communication between us, in spite of our ardent and ungovernable passion, had been so casual and so slight. Looks, a whispered word or so, one furtive clasp in which our hands seemed to grow together, were all I had to go upon as tests of her feeling toward me. Her character I had judged from her face, which was lovely.

What would relieve my doubts? As Hexford drew near me again on our way to the head of the staircase I summoned up courage to ask:

"Have you heard anything from the hill? Has the news of this tragedy been communicated to Miss Cumberland's family, and, if so, how are they bearing this affliction?"

His lip curled, and for a minute he hesitated; then something in my aspect or the straightforward look I gave him softened him, and he answered frankly, if coldly:

"Word has gone there, of course, but only the servants are affected by it so far. Miss Cumberland, the younger, is very ill, and the boy—I don't know his name—has not shown up since last evening. He's very dissipated, they say, and may be in any one of the joints in the lower part of the town."

I stopped in dismay, clutching wildly at the railing of the stairs we were descending. I had hardly heard the latter words. All my mind was on what he had said first.

"Miss Carmel Cumberland ill," I stammered, "too ill to be told?"

I was sufficiently master of myself to put it this way:

"Yes," he rejoined kindly as he urged me down the very stairs I had seen her descend in such a state of mind a few hours before.

"A servant who had been out late heard the fall of some heavy body as she was passing Miss Cumberland's rooms and, rushing in, found Miss Carmel, as she called her, lying on the floor near the open fire. Her face had struck the bars of the grate in falling, and she was badly burned. But that was not all. She was delirious with fever, brought on, they think, by anxiety about her sister."

whose name she was constantly repeating. They had a doctor for her, and the whole house was up before ever the word came of what had happened here."

I thanked him with a look. I had no opportunity for more. Half a dozen officers were standing about the front door, and in another moment I was hustled into the conveyance provided and was being driven away from the death haunted spot.

The Breckinridge County Fair

AT HARDINSBURG, KY., AUGUST 22, 23 and 24

$100 Saddle Stake
$100 Harness Stake
$100 Derby Stake

A. T. BEARD, President

Something Doing all The Time to amuse Both Old and Young
The Greatest Floral Hall in the State
Liberal Premiums on Everything
Reduced Rates on all Roads. Trains stop at Grounds
Write for Catalogue

Bigger and Better than Ever
A HORSE SHOW
Running and Trotting Races Each Day

JNO. M. SKILLMAN, Secretary

WILL BLAZE THE WAY TO CUSTER

Irvington And Citizens Along The Trail Had Successful Good Roads Meeting At Irvington

J. C. PAYNE SECRETARY

As a result of agitation on the part of some of the good citizens of our town there was a meeting of the business men of Irvington and vicinity held at the tent Wednesday afternoon, July 12 at 3:30 o'clock, for the purpose of deciding upon a time in the near future, when a convention looking to the building of the proposed Irvington and Custer turnpike might be decided upon. The result was a most enthusiastic meeting.

In every movement, however good the motive there are those who at the outset say the end cannot be accomplished, so in the movement to construct the pike the knacker is with us, but happy are we to say that his is the minority.

When our forefathers made their way across Cumberland Gap from Virginia into what was then an unexplored country, known only as Kentucky country, a blazed trail or Indian pathway was their only highway. With the development of this country and its wonderful resources, both vegetable and mineral, other routes have become necessary quicker modes of travel and transportation.

Before the coming of the musket the sword was a satisfactory weapon, but it could not reach far enough to count when the bullets began to whistle; when the high power rifle displaced the muzzle loader, the old carbine lost its value—its range became too short. So today with the coming of the auto-van for heavy express and touring car and limousine for the business or pleasure trip, to say nothing of the light harness carriages, traps and runabouts of our modern farmer the blazed trail which long since has given way to the more modern dirt road; and we must now supply the present demand and give in place the modern turnpike.

Let every farmer, mechanic, merchant, doctor—citizen whatever his vocation, respond to the call to assemble at Irvington, Aug. 12. Respond as one man; bring your wives, mothers, sweethearts, and children a well-filled hamper and above all, an unflinching determination that the pike can be and will be built this fall.

The following is a report of the meeting held at the tent: At a meeting of the business men and citizens of Irvington held July 12, 1911, Mr. J. B. Herndon was made chairman. He stated the purpose of the meeting to be the discussion of Good Roads especially the building of a pike from Irvington to Custer and also the most advisable time to hold a good roads convention at Irvington.

A motion was made by J. M. Herndon that the chair appoint a committee to confer with the Fiscal Court to learn what appropriation that body will make toward constructing the proposed pike. After some discussion, the motion which was made to hold the convention August 12 was carried. On motion the two committees were merged into one; W. J. Piggott, J. M. Herndon, and E. H. Skillman constitute the committee. Motion to adjourn carried.

J. C. Payne, Secretary

IRVINGTON.

Mrs. H. H. Kemper, of Minot, North Dakota, left yesterday for Big Spring after spending several days here with friends.

Mrs. Sally Hastings accompanied by her niece, Miss Anna Owsley, of White Mills, came last week to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Marshall.

Mrs. L. B. Moremen and son, Louis Bennett have returned home after spending the past week in Brandenburg.

Mrs. Doris Albi, Philadelphia, Penn., is the guest of Miss Lillian Hozette.

Misses Mary and Anna Lyddan, of

AN APPEAL TO BRECKINRIDGE COUNTY'S GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Our Fifth Annual Fair and Live Stock Exhibition is Drawing Near and it is the Ambition of the Management to Eclipse all Former Efforts--To do This the Support and Co-operation of all is Necessary.

GOOD WILL, INTEREST AND EXHIBITS WILL HELP GREATLY.

It is useless to announce the good and lasting results and benefits to our county and people which have been brought about by the four previous County Fairs. The great improvement in live stock, poultry and even in our people is easily perceptible. In every department of the fair intense interest has been taken and the exhibitors have striven to excel. Each time an exhibitor has seen wherein his competitor has excelled him, he has been moved to try again with renewed determination. In this matter, as in most all others, competition and rivalry have resulted in progress, improvement and the general upbuilding and good of our community and its people.

In the past, hundreds of visitors have made favorable and even flattering comments on the number and character of our exhibits in the various departments. This has been the result of individual effort centralized. We desire each man and woman in the county to feel that he or she is a part of our fair, and that on each rests a part of the responsibility of failure or success. It is not necessary that all win, neither Owensboro, are spending the week as the guests of their aunt, Mrs. John Akers.

The following composed an all day picnic at Sulphur Wells, on Saturday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hale, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ashcraft, Mr. and Mrs. David Hale, Misses Letitia Chaplin, Theodosia and Lottie Mathewney, Laura Hale, Eunice and Nellie Simmons, Messrs John Miles, Henry Kendall, Glen Bandy, Johnnie Simons, and Hubert Bandy.

The building of the Irvington to Custer pike on the cooperative plan, which now seems an assured fact, makes the opening of a new era in the history of the Fourth Magisterial District of old Breckinridge County, it means the drawing in of the chords of union, the towns which today are twelve, seven and four miles distant, with the completion of the pike they will be drawn nearer. One of the Magisterial district's fine old men, who was for a number of years a member of the Fiscal Court and was an advocate of good roads, who having passed to his reward still lives in his doctrine of talking up and writing up that which is for the advancement of the best interest of the county.

Master Edmund Carter and sister, Ellen have returned from a visit to "Grandma" Carter near Cloverport.

Miss Bessie Bentley came up from Henderson last week for a two week stay with her sister, Mrs. A. D. Pulliam.

Mrs. W. W. Holt attended the funeral of Capt. Ryan, in Gloverport, on last Friday.

Miss B. Ada Drury, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. B. McGlothlin for the past two weeks left Monday for Bay View, Petosky, and other North Michigan points.

Mrs. S. P. Parks and sister, Mrs. J. M. Herndon have returned from Brandenburg, where they visited their sister, Mrs. Will Ashcraft for several days.

Mrs. C. L. Chamberlain is at home after a few days spent in Louisville.

Mrs. Alf Newman of Cairo, Ill., and sister, Mrs. Percy Weaver and children, of Louisville, arrived last week for a several week's stay with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bate Washington.

Mrs. Jno. Childs, of Guston, was the week and visitor of her daughter, Mrs. C. S. Neafus.

Mrs. Richard Bandy spent Monday in Louisville, shopping.

Mrs. A. T. Adkins has returned from is it possible, but if you have something of which you feel gratified at possessing or having produced, you owe it to yourself and to the fair to add same that it may go to make up a large and creditable collection of similar articles. Compare, see wherein the other excels, improve your own article and thus raise the standard.

We are already assured of a record breaking exhibition of all kinds of live stock; our concessions will be numerous, interesting and clean; our grounds will be attractive and pleasant; our attendance promises to be unusually good, and we promise you something to entertain and amuse from early morn to late evening.

That that we need most and must have to succeed and to benefit our county's live stock and agricultural interests, is the strong support and co-operation of our citizenship in attendance and exhibits. If a thing looks good to you, it will look good to many others.

Respectfully,
A. T. Beard, President,
John M. Skillman, Secretary.

a short visit to friends in Louisville.

Mrs. Clarence DeWees, of Fordsville, was the guest of her parents for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Bramlette and children returned yesterday from a ten days visit to relatives at Little Bend, Ky.

Mrs. Albert Ashcraft, who has been spending a few days in Guston, returned Friday.

Mrs. D. C. Herron and daughter, Mary and Mrs. Jonas Lyons were in Louisville last week shopping.

Mrs. Jas. Hattell and mother, Mrs. Rhodes left Sunday for Madara, Ky., where they will visit relatives for ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Greetings who have been on a wedding trip arrived here Sunday, and are spending a few days as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schindler.

The Union services at the Tabernacle will continue throughout the week. Preaching by the Rev. R. F. Treadway. The morning services at 10 o'clock and evening at 7:45, with cottage prayer meeting at 4 o'clock each afternoon. The churches being depleted of their seats to supply the Tabernacle, the three Sunday Schools, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian held a Union service at the Tabernacle at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning. W. J. Piggott, Supt. of the Methodist School, conducted the Union choir, while J. M. Herndon, Supt. of the Baptist school, had charge of the exercises. Each school was assigned a section of the room and classes were conducted and reports made as if in each separate school. The novelty of attending Sunday school in a tent, despite the rain brought out a large crowd, there being an attendance of something over two hundred.

The good Road Convention at Irvington, August 12, is the event you must plan to attend. Be sure to come, bring all your family and a good supply of fried chicken, of which good speakers are so fond. Prof. A. M. Schorel, of the State Experimental Station will be on hand to deliver an address on good roads.

Miss Mary Smith, of Guston, is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Newcom Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Graves arrived Saturday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Henry.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Plager, of Chicago, are spending some time here as the guests of Mrs. Plager's mother, Mrs. Nell Bruare, at her home in the Jolly apartment.

COME!

See the Biggest Thing that Ever Happened

A M. W. OF A.

BARBECUE

At Bandy's Grove, 1-8 Mile West of Webster Depot

Saturday, July 22

Austin O'Bryan and Bros. will Furnish Music

Free conveyances meet all trains; a good dinner and plenty of Refreshments of all kinds; a large, cool spring and abundance of shade and seats on the grounds.

COME! COME! COME!

Managers

J. V. St. Clair, Dr. T. J. Hendricks, Adie Kendall

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

For Governor,
Kdward C. O'Rear,
of Mt. Sterling.

For Lieutenant Governor,
L. L. Bristow, of Georgetown.

For Attorney General,
Thos. B. McGregor,
of Benton.

For Auditor,
Leonard W. Betherum, of Mt. Vernon.

For Treasurer,
Merman F. Monroe,
of Louisville.

For Secretary of State,
A. J. Oliver,
of Scottsville.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,
D. W. Clark, of Barbourville.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction,
T. W. Vinson,
of Princeton.

For Clerk Court of Appeals,
C. S. Wilson, of Williamsburg.

Miss Dee Basham, of Louisville, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ater at Bellview.

Mrs. Frank Jolly and son, who have been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charlie Hook, left Monday for her home near Hardinsburg.

Love of Trees.

We find our most soothing companionship in trees among which we have lived, some of which we ourselves may have planted. We lean against them, and they never betray our trust, they shield us from the sun and from the rain, their spring welcome is a new birth which never loses its freshness, they lay their beautiful robes at our feet in autumn; in winter they stand and wait, emblems of patience and of truth, for they hide nothing, not even the little leaf buds which hint to us of hope, the last element in their triple symbolism.—Dr. O. W. Holmes.

If You Want--

a convenient channel through which to transact your financial business, and if you are satisfied that offers you advantages of safety and facilities, please remember that it is easy and convenient to do your BANKING BY MAIL. If you would like to make this bank your depository, and you are not near enough to call to see us, just write us for information, and we will take pleasure in telling you how to forward your deposits by mail.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, Irvington, Ky.

FIRST STATE BANK, :: Irvington, Ky.
J. C. PAYNE, Cashier

J. E. KEITH & SON

DEALERS IN

Granite and Marble

Monuments

WRITE US FOR PRICES.

:: CLOVERPORT, KY.

Globe Trotters Plus.

A number of tourists were recently looking down the crater of Vesuvius. An American gentleman said to his companion:

"That looks a good deal like the infernal regions."

An English lady, overhearing the remark, said to another:

"Good gracious, how these Americans do travel!"—Lippincott's.

A Change of Name.

"Who can give a sentence using the word pendulum?" asked the teacher.

Little Rachel's hand shot up. The teacher nodded encouragingly.

"Lightning was invented by Benjamin Franklin."—Everybody's.

Richard Moorman Dead.

The body of Richard Moorman was brought to Glen Dean from St. Louis where he died in a sanitarium. The funeral was held last Wednesday, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Platt. Mr. Moorman was sixty-eight years of age and was a pioneer citizen of Meade county. He leaves six children, and was the father of Guy A. Moorman who died recently.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport Best Flour."